Shah Alam

Tourism Selangor is the State of Selangor's official tourism promotion agency whose role is primarily to stimulate and promote Selangor as a regional and international tourist destination. The Agency looks to create demand for travel to the state by connecting domestic and international travellers culturally and emotionally to Selangor and its many unique tourism products.

Tasked with the coordination and marketing of well over 100 products and attractions ranging from sophisticated shopping malls, exciting theme parks, ecotourism attractions including geopark and forest reserves, museums and more, the Agency has undertaken various initiatives, including organising campaigns and roadshows, sanctioning or sponsoring local and international events, and participating in several global tourism trade missions in fulfilling its mandate.

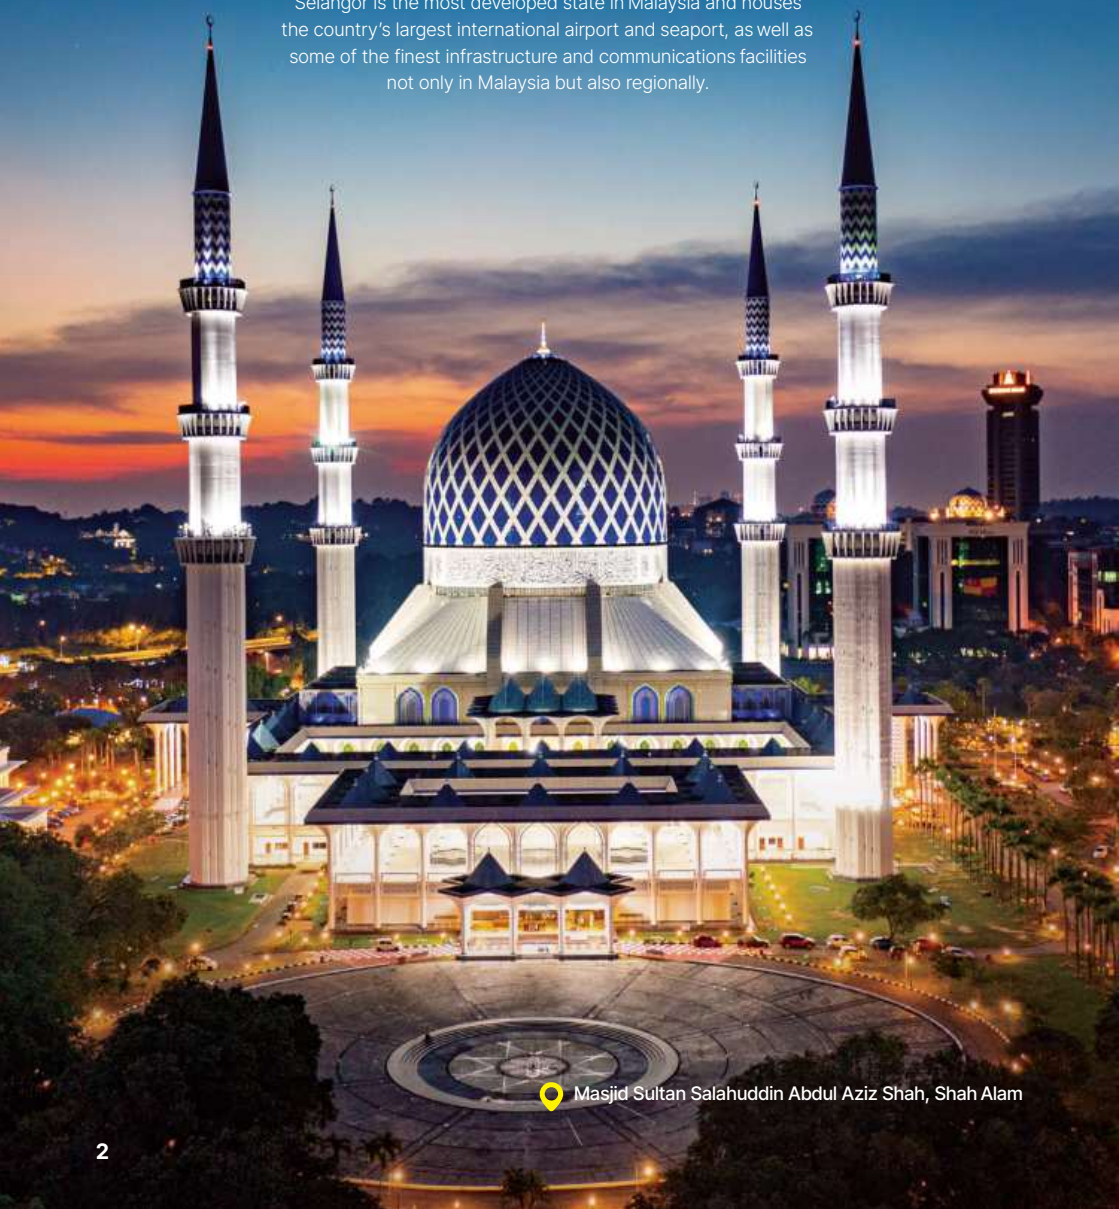

Looking ahead, Tourism Selangor intends to promote Selangor as an extraordinary and highly desirable holiday and event destination. This includes marketing the state by highlighting its outstanding infrastructure and facilities, developing, attracting, and promoting major sporting, arts, cultural, and business events, and supporting significant projects to draw visitors to particular destinations.

Selangor A Brief History

Selangor is the most developed state in Malaysia and houses the country's largest international airport and seaport, as well as some of the finest infrastructure and communications facilities not only in Malaysia but also regionally.

Masjid Sultan Salahuddin Abdul Aziz Shah, Shah Alam

The state has a rich and colourful history that predates the establishment of the Malaccan sultanate in the 14th century.

Istana Bandar, Kuala Langat

Its growing affluence could already be seen in these early days, given its prominence as a main producer and trade centre for tin. In this respect, the Klang River and its port played a major role as the primary point of facilitation for the export of tin to Western traders.

In 1850, Klang was leased to two foreign traders by Raja Abdullah, who was of Bugis descent, for tax collection. This gave rise to a dispute when the son of Sumatran Chief Raja Mahdi refused to pay these taxes, resulting in a civil war that later saw already feuding rival Chinese miners, the Ghee Hins and Hai Sans, joining with the opposing Malay chiefs, thus creating a period of economic turmoil and loss of mining investments. The civil war was finally resolved with the British forcing the Sultan of Selangor to accept a British Resident in 1874, effectively limiting the powers of the Malay ruler. A Federal Council formed in 1909 intended to further diminish the powers of the Sultan saw dissent on the part of the Sultan and other Malay chiefs, causing the British to reluctantly relinquish greater control to the Sultan. This situation continued until 1941 when the Japanese occupied peninsular Malaya.

Following the end of the Second World War, Malaya was returned to the colonial British until 1957, when independence was achieved. In 1963, Selangor became a part of the Federation of Malaysia, with its capital of Kuala Lumpur becoming the administrative centre for trade, commerce and banking. In 1974, Selangor bequeathed Kuala Lumpur to the federal government, and Shah Alam became its new capital. In 2005, Selangor was declared a modern state and is today the nation's most progressive and economically successful state.

For visitors to Selangor, there are a plethora of places to visit and things to do within the lush greenery that prevails throughout the state, from coastal mangroves to abundant green rainforests. Selangor's cities offer a variety of attractions, activities, adventure sports, shopping, and, of course, a veritable feast of disparate cuisines from which to savour.

So come discover what Surprising Selangor
has to offer!

Malaysia's Most Developed State

For travellers looking to experience the very best Malaysia has to offer, Selangor is perhaps the best one-stop destination available; from mountains to beaches, cascading waterfalls to mesmerising city lights from its myriad skyscrapers, Selangor has just the right city-versus-nature balance.

 Kelip-kelip Kampung Kuantan, Kuala Selangor

 Sky Mirror, Kuala Selangor

 Sepang Circuit, Sepang

 White Water Rafting, Hulu Selangor

Nature lovers will delight in a visit to Kampung Kuantan, with its magical light show comprising thousands of fireflies lighting up mystical mangrove forests while cruising silently down the river. Or, commit to posterity pictures of yourselves perfectly reflected in the Sky Mirror, a natural phenomenon in which amazingly clear reflections emerge on the calm shallow sea on specific days of the month.

Thrill seekers will find an abundance of hiking trails and treks, mountain climbs, waterfalls, and a host of nature-related adventures to test their mettle, including paragliding off Bukit Jugra in Kuala Langat.

Selangor's multiracial population also provides ample opportunities throughout the year to witness and experience a range of religious and cultural celebrations, including the Muslim Eid ul Fitri, Chinese New Year, Deepavali, and more. The Thaipusam celebrations at Batu Caves have achieved world renown for the colourful and often elaborate 'kavadis' or sacrifices on display to Lord Murugan amidst a boisterous atmosphere.

All of these festivals are naturally accompanied by an abundance of great food and delectable dishes. Decorations, arts and crafts, the welcoming nature of Malaysians, and a culture of 'open houses', where one and all are welcome to visit and partake of food and entertainment, provide an insight into the rich cultural diversity that makes up the state. Indeed, visitors will find an extensive microcosm of Malaysia, where all roads lead to Selangor and its many cultural and natural wonders.

As with most of the country, Selangor sees more significant rainfall during the earlier and later months of the year, while April to June are the hottest months. That said, the temperature is relatively constant throughout the year, requiring light clothing and possibly an umbrella when the weather dictates.

Getting Around Selangor

Getting around Selangor is fairly uncomplicated, as there is a choice of trains, buses, taxis, e-hailing, and self-driving. The KTM, or National Railway, connects many parts of the state together, including Kuala Kubu Bharu, Bangi, Tanjung Malim, Klang, and Port Klang. It also connects the state with the federal administrative capital of Putrajaya and the capital city of Kuala Lumpur.

 Pusat Bandar Puchong LRT Station, Petaling

Buses, on the other hand, are plentiful and a primary mode of transportation for many seeking to get around the main cities. Catching a taxi is traditionally an easy option, as these can be found everywhere. The more adventurous might look to rent a car. In contrast, those more predisposed to ensuring a convenient and predetermined destination without the need to circumvent any possible language barriers might look to the many e-hailing services at hand, with only downloading an appropriate app.

Malaysia's primary international airport, the Kuala Lumpur International Airport, or KLIA, is located in the Sepang District of Selangor, around 45 km south of downtown Kuala Lumpur and serves an estimated 60 million passengers annually.

The Subang Skypark Terminal, or Subang Airport, is located in Subang, Petaling District, and operates as a central hub for regional and charter carriers, including Firefly, Berjaya Air, and Batik Air, and attracts travellers due to its convenient location in the Klang Valley.

Gombak-Hulu Langat Geopark

A Geopark is also where several disciplines converge, including ecology, archaeology, geology, history, and culture. These disciplines are brought together and managed comprehensively and effectively so that their interdependence is greatly enhanced.

 Kanching Waterfall

 Tabur Hill

 Gua Damai Extreme Park

The Gombak – Hulu Langat Geopark includes the Gombak District and Hulu Langat District, covering 112,955 hectares. In 2022, the Gombak-Hulu Langat Geopark was certified as a national geopark under the Geopark Development Programme. Some of the amazing formations here include the longest quartz formation in Southeast Asia, fossil-rich caves, inland basins, hot springs, and lush mountains.

Visitors to the geopark can avail themselves of several activities, including exploring various geological formations, visiting fossil-rich caves, including the Batu Caves, indulging in hot springs at the Dusun Tua Hot Springs Complex, challenging hiking trips to the granite peak of Gunung Nuang, or taking in the scenic beauty of the Gombak Quartz Ridge. Best of all, these activities are all close to Kuala Lumpur and easily accessible.

Sabak Bernam

A Breath of Fresh Air

PLACES OF INTERESTSabak Bernam District Museum

The Museum offers visitors the opportunity to explore the history of the district! Artefacts on display include economic activities in the maritime and agricultural sectors such as boats and farming implements, traditional Malay items, and interesting stories about the district's economic and social development.

Sekinchan Paddy Field

90 kilometres from Shah Alam is this fishing village best known for its paddy fields, with picturesque sights of an aqueduct, water fowls and vast trenches of paddy fields. Rice harvesting is done around the middle of the year and is an interesting way to discover more about Asia's most popular staple food crop.

Pantai Redang

Redang Sekinchan Beach, while being easily accessible for the public, is not suitable for most water activities including swimming or snorkelling. Activities that are available include kite flying, hearty seafood feasts, and watching glorious sunsets!

Ah Ma House

This is a charming quick-stop attraction celebrating traditional Malaysian Chinese culture, it also has for sale locally made products including traditional kuih, or sweets, snacks, local rice and rice products, handcrafted souvenirs and traditional herbal drinks. Well worth the brief, albeit informative visit.

Sekinchan Wishing Tree

Visitors tie or throw red ribbons onto this large Banyan tree in Pantai Redang in hopes of having their innermost desires and dreams fulfilled. A symbol of hope and positivity, the tree does emanate great vibes and makes for an excellent Insta-worthy destination.

Sungai Panjang Hornbill Conservation Centre

A couple of red and yellow-billed hornbills usually welcome visitors to this conservation centre. The birds readily greet guests to what is home to some ten species of hornbills in Malaysia out of an estimated 32 species of hornbills found in Asia.

Homestay Kampung Sungai Haji Dorani

This homestay is popular for visitors looking to experience traditional 'kampung' or village life. Various cultural performances are performed here while the cuisine served also reflects the traditions of the Javanese. Flying traditional kites, batik painting, and lawn bowling are some of the other activities.

Bagan Nakhoda Omar Recreational Centre

This is a popular destination for visitors, especially those looking for excellent fresh seafood and fishing enthusiasts. There is a jetty from which speedboat rides are taken to the Kelong Paradise, a haven for die-hard anglers. There is also a food court, and various public facilities for visitors.

Ladang Mangga Sungai Rimau

This is the perfect place for fruit lovers to spend a couple of hours picking and savouring mangos fresh off the trees, depending on the season, of course. The farm also offers dried mangoes for sale and visitors get to see how mangoes are planted, harvested and processed.

Kelip-kelip Sungai Panjang

This firefly conservation centre is located along the Besar River in Selangor and is a great location to experience the magic of fireflies while cruising quietly down the river. Boats are also available for rent for fresh water prawn fishing.

PLACES OF INTERESTLadang Buah-Buahan Sekinchan

Kuala Selangor Nature Park

This park comprises a 20-hectare tropical rain forest, with the remaining area being a swamp forest and is home to a wide variety of wild birds, including 156 species of migratory birds. Three distinct habitats exist: inland secondary forests, muddy estuaries and mudflats, and a brackish water lake inhabited by wetland animals.

Sky Mirror, Kuala Selangor

This fascinating natural phenomenon occurs only on the 1st and 15th days of the lunar month and four days before and after. The seabed appears above water for a few hours at low tide, exposing a vast expanse of very calm, reflective salt flats that literally mirror the sky.

Selangor Fruit Valley

The Selangor Fruit Valley has many activities to engage in, including a tram ride, a petting zoo, a herbal garden, fruits, fishing, an orchid garden, biking, and lots more. Also within its grounds are a nursery, rubber tapping discovery, and a traditional Selangor kampung or village house.

Sri Subramaniam Swamy Temple

The Sri Subramaniam Swamy Temple in Kuala Selangor is a sacred sanctuary dedicated to Lord Subramaniam Swamy, the divine son of Lord Shiva and Goddess Parvati. This revered temple has been a beacon of faith, devotion, and divine grace for over a century. The temple's sanctum was built in 1915, and over the years, it has flourished and expanded as a place of peace, worship, and cultural connection.

Remis Beach

This spot has some of the best sunset views over the Straits of Malacca and is a favourite for kite flying visitors who make the most of its windy shores and also cast fishing. There is also an abundance of stalls that sell a variety of fresh seafood. Remis Beach is an excellent choice for a family outing.

Eagle Feeding Kuala Selangor

This exciting event takes place at Pasir Penampang near the mouth of the Selangor River. Brahminy Kites, hover in anticipation of a free meal. Each feeding session lasts about 45 minutes and is seen from a speedboat. Visitors on the late afternoon tour will usually enjoy spectacular sunsets as well.

Blue Tears Experience

This remarkable natural phenomenon is made up of blue-green bioluminescence emitted by dinoflagellates, a marine plankton. The ideal time to experience this magical event is on truly dark nights of a new moon and about two hours after sunset.

Kuala Selangor District Historical Museum

Originally the official residence of the Kuala Selangor District Officer, the museum has a wealth of artefacts and historical data related to Kuala Selangor as the state's earliest administration centre. Kiosks, dioramas and other modern displays enable visitors to appreciate their visit to the museum better.

PLACES OF INTERESTTian Hock Temple

This Buddhist temple is located in the heart of Klang and offers visitors a quiet respite from the hurry and noise of city life.
